The National Association of fire engineers met in annual convention at Long Branch, Tuesday, with Chief D. J. Swane, of Chicago, in the chair. Delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada were present.

Congressman Reed, of Maine, according to a Boston interviewer, thinks that there is absolutely nothing in the president's course thus far to justify the claims made in his behalf by the professed advocates of civil service reform.

Colonel J. B. Walton, a distinguished military man of New Orleans, died yesterday, aged 72. In the rebellion Walton was chief of artillery to Beauregard's and Long's corps, and afterward inspector general of artillery in the confederacy.

A girl from Dover, Wis., Sept. 8th, says: "Mrs. Christian Johnson, of this place, has given birth to four babies at one time, their aggregate weight being twenty-two pounds. Three of the children are alive and well. The other died soon after birth."

The New York monument fund has reached $75,000, from which considerable reduction is to be made for expenses. "The sum needed will be ultimately raised," is the opinion expressed by an eastern newspaper. From indications, however, none of the present generation of artists will be called on for a plan of the work, if operations are to be delayed till the money is ready to pay for it.

A bay mare and large wheat stack belonging to Angelus Verbrick, of Prospect, Waukesha county, were burned on Monday night. Mr. Verbrick had quarreled with a tramp and ordered him off his premises, in revenge for which the tramp fired the barn. He was captured almost immediately, being, it is said, severely bitten by Mr. Verbrick's dog, and taken to Waukesha jail. The property was insured.

The South Dakota constitutional convention met Tuesday at Sioux Falls with seventy-one delegates present. A. J. Edgerton, of Yankton, chief justice of the supreme court, was chosen president; John Kane, of Huron, secretary; H. M. Avery, of Sioux Falls, assistant secretary; M. B. Kent, of Elk Point, sergeant-at-arms. Neill, of Grant, introduced a resolution opposing a division, and moving immediate adjournment sine die. The motion was laid on the table—59 to 12.

Senator Mahone is making a canvass in Virginia that is alarming the Bourbon democracy, the night riders and kluks. With a peaceful election and a fair vote, a legislature will undoubtedly be chosen favorable to his re-election as United States senator. He and Wise, the republican candidate for governor, have made an equitable division of the labor before them. Mahone is looking after the legislative districts, and Wise is stirring up the popular vote on the state ticket.

John W. Mackay, the Nevada millionaire, has two ambitious schemes on the board: (1) The purchase of a New York newspaper; (2) running for United States senator, from Nevada. He is now in New York city, with the redoubtable Mrs. Mackay, looking after the first venture, and after that is settled will proceed to his home in the mountains. His candidature for the senate is regarded so much a settled affair that the electors of Nevada are already reckoning what their votes will be worth when the big millionaires, Mackay and Fair, come into competition at the next election.

The accounting officers of the treasury department, having notified Admiral Jousset that the $250 deducted from his pay for the dinner he gave to distinguished people at the New Orleans Exposition, are somewhat surprised at receiving a note from that jolly sea-dog that under the law he pay can be stopped only by the sentence of a court martial. This is a little point which the fresh comptroller overlooked. He rendered several decisions in such cases without hearing arguments or evidence, and in a very one of them had to back down, as he will in the Jousset case.

Milo, the actor-puncher, and Benton, his business manager, have had a falling out and dissolved their partnership, but not without enacting a very funny scene. It was at Atchison, Kansas, and before beginning the play Milo appeared before the curtain and began a denunciation of his partner, Mrs. Benton, the partner's wife, refused to accept the robbin in silence, and taking possession of a private box with a newspaper man to introduce her, talked back in great shop, much to the delight of the assembled multitude. It was epic to a dull show, and the audience quit the house in good humor.

Dr. Norvin Gross, president of the Western Union Telegraph company, has presented his report for the current quarter to the executive committee. The statement shows: The net revenues of the quarter ending September 30 instant based upon nearly completed reports for July, partial returns for August and estimated for the business for September, will be about $1,450,000; and surplus July 1, $1,234,004; total, $2,684,004. From which appropriating for interest on bonded debt, $123,768; sinking funds, $20,000, leaves a balance of $5,630,236. It requires for a dividend of 1 1/2 per cent. on the capital stock $1,199,812, deducting which, leaves a surplus of $1,430,424.

The fact does not appear to be generally understood, that the high license law (chapter 236, laws of 1885) provides that if there are not enough votes polled in any municipality, for the highest license fee—$500—then all the votes cast for $500 are to be considered as having been cast for $850, and will be so counted. In use there shall be a tie between the $200 and $300 sums, and there happen to be no votes cast for the medium—$350—then that medium sum shall be held and considered the sum to be paid for license. Nobody will lose his vote by casting it for $500, for it will be counted in some way. It is to be hoped, however, that a majority of the electors will vote for the $500 fee, the highest attainable under the present law.

Otto Storkack, the young lad who so heroically saved four girls from drowning last week at Oakesh, has been rewarded in a substantial manner by two of the girls. Anna Hartwig had a little money saved up and with it she purchased a handsome silver watch, chain and charm, which she presented to the young man. Amelia Paulsen has purchased a handsome gold ring to be given to Storkack as a token of her appreciation of her appreciation of his brave act. Both gifts are appropriately engraved. Although they do not represent large sums of money it took all the money the girls possessed to procure them, and they signify as much if not more than if they were more valuable. The other girls are arranging to present their rescuer with appropriate mementoes.

Near Gainesville, Tex., Detectives Taylor and Worth surprised and killed the two Lee brothers, who were regarded as the most daring roadmen that had ever infested Indian territory, and for whose capture, dead or alive, a reward of $1,000 had been offered. Perhaps no band of outlaws in the United States ever did such bloody work in so brief a period as the Lee gang, headed by Jim and Bill and Pink Lee. Within two years from the first of last May forty-two human lives were taken by this bloody band of cattle and horse thieves. They stole thousands of cattle and drove them into Indian territory. Bill Lee was captured in May last with three other members of his gang, and has been taken to Fort Smith, Ark., to stand trial for the murder of the two Roff brothers and a deputy United States Marshal in the Chickasaw nation.

It is understood that Lieutenant-Colonel Chynoweth, who is in command of two companies of regulars at Rock Springs, Wyoming, has requested that he be reinforced by additional troops. It is surmised that a preconcerted movement is on hand to rescue the ringleaders of the outbreak, now in jail at Green River, who were to have had a preliminary examination Wednesday, but did not on account of the unavoidable absence of Judge A. B. Conway, who is expected here in a day or two. There are no developments at Evanston. The situation is practically unchanged. The mines at Almy are still idle. It is reported that General Manager Calloway of the Union Pacific railway, has notified Beckwith & Quinn, the Chinese contractors, that they must get the Chinese out of Evanston and Almy, immediately. The necessary orders have been given to the troops in the case of a threatened attack.

The truth is coming out about the Congo valley, several newspaper and commercial correspondents having recently gone over the ground as far as Stanley's pool. Their unanimous opinion is, that until railways are established there can be no safe or successful transportation of goods, and that even were railways built it is extremely doubtful if any considerable trade could be worked up with the natives, who as a rule have nothing valuable to sell and are not very desirous to meet the whites. These natives have no domesticated beasts of any sort, nor do they raise or catch any animals to eat as they know nothing of flesh as food. No semblance of clothing is worn, and diet is practically confined to spontaneous products of the forest. Letters from missionaries say, too, that the negroes there are so low in mentality that any hope of christianizing them must be based on a long and patient course of intellectual training. They are too densely ignorant to comprehend the simplest statement of doctrine.

David Mead, the Eau Claire forger, passed out of the state prison to-day, having served a term of four years. He made an excellent record while at Waupun, keeping the books free from black marks against himself. His good behavior, in connection with the termination of his sentence recalls an interesting incident which occurred while he was long taken to the state prison. He was accompanied by the sheriff of Eau Claire county, and when they reached Waupun, the officer went into a saloon and took his prisoner with him. The two drank rather freely, after which the sheriff engaged in a game of billiards with some of the patrons of the saloon, and seemed to forget his mission to Waupun. After watching the game for some time, Mead's patience became exhausted. He was not handcuffed, and the sheriff was pretty well filled with liquor, but Mead did not attempt to escape, although he might have successfully done so, as no one in the saloon knew that he was a convict and on his way to prison. He finally said to the officer, "Come, sheriff, if you are going to take me to the penitentiary, let us go for I am tired waiting."

Some sheriffs make a trip of that kind to Waupun a sort of a free and easy time, and not infrequently imbibe more than discretion will warrant; and this brings to mind another incident which happened a year or two ago. A sheriff from the southern part of the state started for the state prison with a man who had been sentenced for a term of years. The officer intended to get off at Baraback Junction and take the Milwaukee & St. Paul for Waupun; but he was the worse for drink and had fallen asleep. When Baraback was reached the prisoner got off, and thinking the sheriff was following him paid no attention to him. Instantly the train moved on taking the sleeping sheriff with it. When this fact became known the official was in a quandary. He was a strong in a strange land, with a pair of handcuffs on to attract attention. At last he mounted a fence near the depot, and for some time sat upon the top board meditating as to the outcome of his amusing situation. Some one observed his hand-cuffs, and asked him what he was doing with them on. His answer was, "The sheriff is drunk and asleep and has gone on to Chester and I am waiting for some one to take me to prison." He waited for the St. Paul train one hour, and without an attendant proceeded to Waupun. The man's good record, and will soon regain his personal liberty.

BRIDE BUT A MOMENT.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY ENACTED IN ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

John Shelton Elopes with a 16-Year-Old Girl—Her Father and Brother Pursue Them and the Three Men Are Fatally Wounded.

ATLANTA, Ga., 10.—A tragedy, in which three men were mortally wounded, occurred here Wednesday. The parties were John and Matthew Maxwell, father and son, and John R. Shelton, who had eloped with the 16-year-old Miss Ada Maxwell. John Maxwell is a highly respected citizen. His son, Matthew, is a carriage manufacturer. Mr. Maxwell had three comely daughters, aged 15, 13 and 11. The eldest, Ada, last week eloped with a bold, handsome, but careless youth, whose visits were forbidden by the girl's father. Nevertheless, they contrived to meet secretly. Wednesday afternoon a man approached Matthew Maxwell and told him that his sister and Shelton had planned an elopement, and that the appointed hour was 8:30 o'clock. Lurrying home, young Maxwell rushed up to the second-story room, which his sister occupied, and demanded admittance, which was refused. With a kick he burst the door open, and found Ada already dressed for her escape. "I will marry you," she said, "if I have to die in the attempt. It is useless for you to try and prevent it." In vain the brother expostulated. The girl remained obdurate. He then locked the door and left her a prisoner, and went to his room. Returning in ten minutes, he opened the door and found the room empty. The girl had opened the window, jumped to a roof fifteen feet below, and thence to the ground, another jump of fifteen feet; time her tracks were followed to the side alley, where now lay the carriage tracks told that she had reached her lover and was away by the time the elder Maxwell was upon the scene. The two men were so fearfully agitated, they went into the house, and at 6 o'clock, armed to the teeth, emerged and proceeded to Davis street, whither Shelton had taken his bride after having been married by Rev. J. G. Norcross. Several clergymen had previously refused to perform the ceremony. The two men went up to Shelton's door. Shelton, standing on the threshold with a hatchet, said: "You are a scoundrel, Maxwell. I will shoot you to death unless you give up my daughter." "Do not come near me," shouted Shelton, raising the hatchet and advancing. Just then, young Maxwell, seeing his father's danger, stepped in between and received the blow from the tomahawk. Dropping the bloody instrument, Shelton then drew his pistol and fired at the elder Maxwell. Simultaneously Maxwell also fired, and all three men fell across each other, wounded and bleeding. The girl who had been the cause of all this bloody work rushed upon the scene and, embracing her dying husband, called him by endearing names while her father and brother lay neglected. Within five minutes hundreds of people collected, officers came, and the men were removed. Shelton and young Maxwell will certainly die, while the death of the old man is highly probable. Just a month ago Matthew Maxwell was himself the hero of an elopement scrape. A young woman engaged to another, with the day set, eloped with him the night before.

Governor Hill Says a Word or Two.
ALBANY, Sept. 10.—When Governor Hill was asked by a reporter who he thought would be the republican nominee for governor, he replied: "Carr seems at present to be the only available candidate. The fact of the matter is that the nomination is going to a begging, and all who have been mentioned in connection with it have withdrawn their names. Should some one come up who has not been mentioned with the bar from above, of the party I do not doubt that he would easily capture the convention."

It was suggested that Seward and Carr would probably be the ticket. "I think not," replied the Governor, "for I told me what he would not take the second place."

Arguments in the Mackinac Case.
OTTAWA, Ill., Sept. 10.—The long anticipated arguments in the Mackinac jewelry case took place at the supreme court Wednesday. There was a large attendance of interested spectators, among whom were a number of local attorneys and citizens, ladies, and distinguished members of the bar from abroad. Among the latter were Mr. Barga, of Dixon; the Hon. J. D. Caton, of Andrew S. Gage, and H. T. Helm and Frank J. Crawford.

Mr. Rieberg, of Mackinac's counsel, spoke first, followed by Mr. Story. After listening to the attorneys' remarks the court took the matter under advisement.

Nore Chinaman Mobbed.
SPRINGFIELD, Wis., Sept. 10.—Wednesday night a mob of Indians, headed by white men, attacked a party of Chinese in Springfield, thirty miles east of this city, with clubs and stones, killing two and wounding four. The cause of the row was that in former years Indians had been hired exclusively to pick hops, and this year one firm hired Chinamen. They were warned to leave, but refused to go.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Spain Suppressing the Newspapers.
MADRID, Sept. 10.—Count Salas Sonnenschein, the German ambassador, has informed the Spanish officials at Yape before the German gumbat would not affect the question if Spain actually occupied the island first. It is rumored that the government has received information from the man-of-war Velasco showing that the report that the Polve islands have been occupied by Germany is not true. Military men now insist that their comrades at Yape acted under orders from Madrid and Manila in order to avoid a conflict with the Germans. The campaign against the press is active. Thirty-four papers of Madrid have been proscribed. Caricatures are being seized by the wholesale. The censorship also prevents true accounts being received of the expressions of popular wrath against Germany at Saragossa, Valencia, Barcelona, Granada, and twenty other places.

Mobbing Chelsea Refugees.
LONDON, Sept. 10.—Recently several Italian steamers from Palermo, having on board refugees from the cholera infected parts of Sicily, have entered this port and discharged their passengers without observing the quarantine regulations. This, becoming known, so aroused the indignation of the people that a mob assembled in front of a hotel where many of the fugitives were stopping, and attempted to break the building. The military were called out and after a sharp fight with the infuriated people, dispersed them. Many of the crowd and several of the military were wounded.

Mortality Among the Troops in the East.
LONDON, Sept. 10.—It has been ascertained that a fearful mortality from cholera and dysentery is prevailing at Rawul Pindi, Quetta, and in the Indian East India post summer. The English regiments have lost 139 men and nine officers by death, while thirty officers and a large number of men are incapacitated for duty by sickness. The mortality among the coolies has been very great.

Runners of Cholera in Belgium.
LONDON, Sept. 10.—It is rumored that several cases of cholera have occurred at Mons, Belgium.

Chinamen Return to Rock Springs.
CHEYENNE, Wyo., Sept. 10.—Wednesday all of the Chinese miners who have been at work in the mines at Almy, together with the fugitive Chinese driven out of Rock Springs by the white miners, were under escort of four companies of troops, taken back to Rock Springs to resume work in the mines. They number close on to 1,000. Governor Warren accompanied them, quite a number of Almy are being sent to the mines at Evanston as substitutes. The excitement at Evanston has subsided somewhat, but the feeling is very bitter against the railway company. Judge Parke, of the supreme court of this territory, now in session at Evanston, charged the grand jury Wednesday morning, and in general terms severely condemned the Rock Springs outbreak. The prisoners held at Green River have not had their examination yet.

Western Nail Association.
CINCINNATI, Sept. 10.—The Western Nail association met in regular session Wednesday in the largest hall in the city. President Voice, of Wheeling, in the chair, George Wise, secretary. Outside of the private deliberations upon the strike of the nail men they passed the following resolutions: Resolved, that we reaffirm the $23 cent price of nails with the usual discount to the trade. They met here again on the second Wednesday of October. Members affirm that a number of mills are running, but with short bands, the founders having taken the places of the nailers and do not expect that any arrangement will be made by which the difficulties are likely to be satisfied.

A LOVER'S COMPLIMENT.

The girl with the freckled face is now fashionable. He fondly gazed on the freckled face. Then an arm was placed about her waist, and gave her a fond embrace. And called her his pretty trout. Into her eyes a red flash came. And her face with blush grew dim. And she said, "why call me such a name?" And he turned her back on him. "Oh, to praise his girl is a lover's right." He said, "and a lover's duty." And I called you a pretty trout to-night. Because you're a freckled beauty."

—Last evening Trinity church was brilliantly lighted up and the auditorium was well filled with people drawn there by the "Harvest home" service. The church was tastefully decorated with flowers, fruit and vegetables, and the house of worship presented a very attractive appearance. Services were led by the pastor, Rev. Before and after his address the surprised choir rendered a number of choice selections, adding greatly to the interest of the exercises.

—This morning near J. W. Nash's grocery store, a runaway was inaugurated which for a few moments promised very serious results. Mrs. Patrick McCaffery had just driven up to the store with a horse and buggy, when an empty barrel was tipped into the street, directly in front of the horse. The animal made a plunge, jerked one wheel of the buggy over the barrel and narrowly escaped upsetting the vehicle. By this time several bystanders had taken a hand in the affair, and stopping the horse soon put things to rights. About half an hour after this occurred a team across the road became restless, pulled over a iron hitching post, and would have escaped had not one been around to look after them.

—Frank Funchon, who was arrested in this city one year ago last May on suspicion of having something to do with the death of Gusie Luknow, and who was convicted of the crime of adultery, is now in state prison at Waupun, serving a four-year sentence. He is an old timer at the prison, this being the fourth commitment to that institution. He was first sent up from Brown county in 1871, on the charge of larceny and served one year. His second conviction was at Fond du Lac in 1875, where he was arrested for obtaining money under false pretences. His third conviction was in Rock county in 1877, for stealing horses. He was convicted on two counts, and sentenced to serve a term of five years for each. And his fourth was in 1884 as previously stated.

—The shattering which connects the main building of the upper cotton mill with the building on the race, gave out yesterday morning and the mill will necessarily be idle for two or three days. The break occurs at an unfortunate time as the mill is very busy, with a promising outlook for the fall and winter trade. Raw cotton has declined from a cent to a cent and a quarter per pound since the latter part of August, reducing the cost of production on cloth about a quarter of a cent per yard. The cotton mill interests throughout the country are looking up. Our home institution at the present time is furnishing employment to three hundred and twenty hands, and is enjoying a brisk demand for goods. The people of Janesville will rejoice in these indications of prosperity. The cotton mill has done much for the manufacturing interests of our city, and with careful handling is capable of establishing an enviable reputation as the cotton market of the Badger state. The enterprise is entitled to the sympathy and good will of all our citizens.

—All persons interested in the reorganization of the Chautauque Circle are requested to meet at Mrs. C. T. Wright's, South Jackson street, Saturday afternoon, September 12th, at 4:30 o'clock. Those who cannot do so, will please confer with Mrs. C. T. Hent previous to that time. "There are thousands of churches that have caught a new life from Chautauque, and there are thousands of communities that have been beautified by Chautauque, and there are thousands of individual lives that have climbed to high and noble ambition by Chautauque." Thus speaks Rev. A. E. Dunning, of Boston, a representative of the Congregational church in its Sunday school work. It is a mistaken idea that this is a money making institution; the monies received we use in extending and perpetuating her glory; the education of the people. All honor to Dr. Vincent as the founder of the People's College.

WILD ANIMALS.

How the Occupants of the Court House Were Exposed to Them.

One of the county officials has an experience lately, which it didn't make his head turn grey, made each individual hair stand on end with terror. The cause of all his trouble was an innocent little rabbit, but the commotion excited would have done credit to a cyclone. The animal under discussion had been partially tamed by the kind-hearted county clerk, and a few days ago it struck him that his menagerie ought, by rights, to pay for his board. He called the janitor, closed all the doors, and the two started in for a catch-as-catch-can rabbit hunt, which resulted in the capture of their victim. The desk intended for a museum of natural history, was then carefully opened and filled with live stock, and the jokers laid in wait for the owner. He soon came, and carefully lifting the cover, reached for his pen, at the same time remarking to a companion that he couldn't see what made the room so small; he could make a side show. The reason was soon evident, for when instead of grasping a pen, he laid hold of the off hind leg of something very lively, he looked down upon a very vigorous brunet rabbit. The animal at once tried to secure itself against criticism by climbing up the convenient coat sleeve, but the design was frustrated. The official made one jump which landed him in the middle of the room; then gathered himself up and slid down the banisters to the municipal court. Here he found John Menzies and gave him the benefit of the experience. From the description given John concluded that the beast was either a serpent or a materialized night mare, neither of which are allowed in the court house. Realizing that something must be done he started, with rare presence of mind, to make out a warrant, charging the visitor with obstructing a county officer in the discharge of his duty. At last accounts this warrant had not been served, as there was a sudden scarcity of officers, but it took a writ of habeas corpus, three ten cent cigars and two constables to keep the victim from converting County Clerk Williams into a shapeless pulp, when he saw that gentleman meandering across the hall with a rabbit's head sticking out of his pocket.

Accident at Evansville.

To the Editor.

EVANSVILLE, Wis. Sept. 3, 1893.

There was an old man who gave his name as Gunning, and said he used to live at Maxville in the town of Bradford, but now resided at Dundee, Ill. He undertook to get on the night passenger train last night about 12 o'clock while the train was in motion but fell, his left leg getting under the wheels and it was so crushed that it had to be amputated between the knee and ankle. The amputation was performed by Dr. Evans assisted by other physicians of the place. After his wound was dressed and he became quiet I questioned him in reference to the circumstances with the following result: He said he was pretty full of whisky and that he boarded the north bound train at Afton expecting it was going south as he wanted to go to Dundee, Ill. When the train got to Evansville the conductor discovered his mistake and put him off so he could return, and as near as he can remember, he undertook to get on the same train he was put off, with the result before stated. He says he has two sons near Duran, a wife at Dundee, and some other children in Chicago and one son at North Freedom, Wis.

D. M. JOHNSON.

Broder's Inquest.

This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock a coroner's jury headed by Justice A. D. Wickham went to Beloit there to hold an inquest on the body of Professor Paul Broder, who died in that city in 1881. Broder, it will be remembered, was a professor in the college of Notre Dame, Indiana, and was a man of considerable property. He was somewhat addicted to the use of liquor, and it was supposed at the time that while somewhat under the influence of alcohol he fell down a flight of stairs in his own house, crushing in his skull. His two sisters who reside in Beloit are well off, were never satisfied of the truth of this theory, and had always entertained a suspicion of foul play. Just what this suspicion was based on is not known, but they have during most of the time since his death kept detectives engaged in the matter. They have at different times made applications to the district attorney, but they after due investigation have decided the theory to have no foundation, and have refused to take action in the matter. They have lately made several applications to District Attorney Malone for a coroner's inquest, but he not wishing to incur needless expense to the county for anything so fruitless.

Within a few days the sisters have drawn up an affidavit stating that Paul Broder came to his death by violence at the hands of persons unknown. This was presented to Justice Wickham and he, being obliged under the circumstances to hold an inquest, has summoned a jury from this city, and with Dr. Henry Palmer, who was engaged in the examination of the body, left for Beloit to attend to the matter. The body is embalmed and has been brought up from Chicago so the inquest will probably commence this afternoon.

As to the general sentiment in Beloit, there seems to be little stock taken in the story of foul-play, and few had any idea that there was to be an investigation.

"What about the Answer Key?"

[For the Janesville Gazette.] High or low license? That is the question to be decided on the 15th of this present month. A question in which every citizen, every property owner, every business man and every taxpayer is deeply interested. I take it for granted that there is no doubt as to the result if the people of this city take sufficient interest in this matter to turn out and vote. The great danger is that it will be allowed to go by default. The liquor men are always organized and ready to fight and to use money freely for their own interests. Will the friends of high license organize? To meet slang phrase of the day they must "get up and get it" if they would win. Shall we have fifty saloons or twenty? That is now the important question. — L. —

Change of Name.

The change of firm in the hardware establishment formerly occupied by G. A. Metcalf & Co., is now complete, and the firm name is now Metcalf & Gorden. Mr. R. J. Clemens has disposed of his interest to Messrs. John and Samuel Gorden, as his other business interests required his entire attention. The gentlemen who now compose the firm are well known in this city. Mr. Metcalf, though he has only been here for a short time, has won for himself a reputation for integrity, perseverance and capability second to none, while Messrs. John and Samuel Gorden have been connected with too many successful enterprises to need any further mention of their judgment in business matters. That the new firm will meet with a success equal to that of any like establishment in the city is undoubted, and that they will have hosts of friends is already assured.

On the Move.

The dry goods business on the west side of the river is just now on the move and within a week will settle down in new quarters and be prepared to talk business from the front door of new and desirable locations. The establishment so long known as McKoy Bros. will occupy the commodious store recently known as Ueber's store, the sales room eighty feet long has been conveniently arranged and is now being packed full of goods. The McKoy opening will occur on Saturday.

The Chicago store is also on the wing and will settle down to business in the McKoy store next Tuesday. Their stock is simply immense and the large double store will be packed from top to bottom, with a great variety of goods bought at prices that will warrant bargains to every customer.

Last, but not least, is the dry goods opening of Mr. Charles E. Cummings, which will occur on Saturday. For twenty-one years Mr. Cummings has been identified with the dry goods interests of Janesville. During that time his genial disposition and practical business knowledge have won for him a host of friends who will rejoice in his prosperity and extend to him a liberal patronage. Mr. Cummings will occupy a part of the Green & Rice crockery store on West Milwaukee street. His goods are arriving from the eastern market every day, and his store already begins to look like business. The Gazette extends congratulations to all the movers, and is confident that in the new locations prosperity may be induced to tarry the round year is said out. "So mote it be."

The Weather.

At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 47 degrees above zero. Clear, with north wind. At one o'clock p. m. the register was 68 degrees above zero. Partly cloudy with north wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 74 and 92 degrees above zero.

To-Night.

"Skipped by the Light of the Moon" will draw out a full house to-night and if the half we hear of it be true the occasion will be one to be remembered by our theatre goers. The piece has acquired a national reputation, having been repeatedly performed in nearly every large city throughout the country. The Philadelphia Ledger says:

"One might as well hope to successfully photograph a laugh as to describe 'Skipped by the Light of the Moon,' or say what it is funny. It is simply and sublimely delicious. It is an object to raise a breeze, and the breeze which has been raised by it has got quite beyond control, and grows to an unmanageable magnitude of a cyclone. The most important nature goes down before it without a show of resistance and everybody rolls and shakes and laughs. Nothing in the way of farcical invention that has been seen here in recent years can be compared to it for rapid action, novel situations and entangled complications. 'Skipped' can lay claim to the longest and most successful run of all the funny plays produced in this city for the past two seasons."

No lengthy advertisement is necessary to bolster up Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Tobacco Market.

JANESVILLE.

During the week the '85 tobacco has hardly prospered, though a large quantity has been harvested. Most of that which is going in now is ripe, as farmers are beginning to get over their fear of frost, but the crop is somewhat damaged from rust, hail and grasshoppers, so that the percentage of wrappers is much smaller than in '84. By this time most of the crop is safely housed, and while not so good as last year, will hold its own with any of the '85. No pole rot or shed burn is reported; but the leaf does not cure rapidly in this damp weather, and the slow work may lead to bad results toward the close of the season. Several eastern dealers have been looking through the sheds during the week, but in cured leaf very little has been done. The buying season is now near at hand, and the buyers will soon be on the go.

Farmers who have a good crop this year should take special pains with it as the class '85 Wisconsin is bound to command a high price in the market. The man who neglects to visit his shed every day and watch the progress of the curing and condition of the leaf is running more risk of shed burn and pole rot than any one can afford. Watch the sheds, see that the leaf is curing evenly, and you will be amply rewarded by its enhanced value.

He Couldn't Get Out to Vote.

From the San Francisco Post.

A party of English tourists were coming from the Yosemite last week, when one of them, who had been dubbed the interrogation point of the crowd, espied a pair of brogans sticking in the face of the bluff, nose down. Nudging the coach driver, who changed to be Bill McClelland, he asked: "Ah, driver, I wonder what the deuce those boots are doing up there?"

Old Bill severely glanced up as he replied: "That's a man buried upside down, and the boys were in such a hurry that they did not dig deep enough to get his feet in."

"Bah Jawa, that's very strange, ye know, I'll make a note of that. But I say, driver, the toes point down. He must be buried on his face, d'ye know?" "Yes," said old Bill musingly. "He was an Irishman."

"But what's his being an Irishman to do with his being buried face down?" asked the now thoroughly aroused Britisher.

Old Bill looked at him in a plying manner for some seconds, and then in a tone full of deep sorrow and astonishment to the tourist's ignorance said: "Well, do you see we've got a sort of superstition out this way that on election day every dead Irishman gets out of his grave and votes, and so lately we've got to burying 'em on top of the hill face down, so that the more the corpses tries to dig out the deeper he gets in the ground."

"Oh, yes, I see," said the Englishman, musingly. "I'll make a note of that for my book."

The Negro and the Millionaire.

Most of the waiters of the states are colored college students from Howard university, Washington. My waiter told me this morning that he had finished geometry and mathematics, Lavy, Caesar and Virgil in Latin and the Anaësis in Greek.

The other day at dinner Prof. Henry, of Harvard college, was scanning a line of Virgil's hexameter to illustrate the meter to a rich business friend who had not read the classics.

"Longfellow's Evangeline and Virgil's epics" said the professor, were written in the same hexameter. Now the first line of Virgil is scanned like this: "Ar-ma-virum-que."

"Why, I declare," he said, (hesitating) "to forget the Latin words."

"Shall I give them to you?" asked the waiter politely.

"Yes," said the professor in astonishment.
